Cross-Cultural Ministry

New workers in PNG

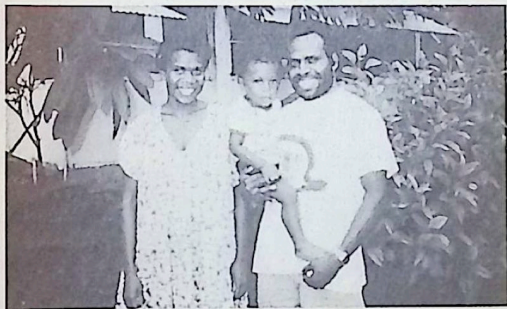

Shem, Elizabeth and Stephen Tema recently arrived in PNG from Vanuatu. They are now the sixth Ni-Vanuatu family to go to work as missionaries in PNG. Shem's particular area of expertise is in youth ministry and he will be heading up the youth ministry section of the Conference of Churches of Christ in PNG. Shem has worked in this position previously in Vanuatu and has also received training in Fiji. He comes from Ranwas on Pentecost Island and Elizabeth is from Tanna Island.

The Temas will initially live at Momonup, in a house close by that of Joses and Mina Sali and their family. The Salis were the fifth family to come from Vanuatu to PNG and Joses works as the Principal of the Men's Bible School. Joses also comes from Ranwas on Pentecost Island.

On 7 September, Ian and Cynthea Hunt, along with two of their children Caleb and Sarah, will arrive in PNG. The Hunts have previously been in ministry with the Horsham, Vic, church and have answered the call to go to PNG to work as Church Advisers. This ministry involves training national church leaders in programs that they can then take back to their local churches.

The Hunts will initially be based at Chungribu and will live in a house quite near Frank and Ros Beale.

We would encourage members of our churches to pray for these two families as they are involved in cross-cultural mission. From different places and in different circumstances, both families have responded to the call of God upon their lives to leave behind family and friends and to make new friends as they serve the family of God in ministry.

tion and literacy work in selected countries each year.

The Bike for Bibles program raises funds to supply New Reader Scriptures and necessary funding in countries where literacy programs are in place. In 1988-89, 11 countries gladly used "New Reader" booklets for their literacy programs. Since 1984, Australian Bike for Bibles cyclists of all ages have raised more than $3.5 million for this exciting ministry. Now, Bible Societies in many other countries have also accepted the challenge. Currently, New Reader Scriptures in 350 languages in 75 different countries are available. This program of the Bible Society will help some 20% of the world's population who cannot read receive the opportunity to learn to read the Scriptures in their own language.
